SAINT PETERSBURG MINING UNIVERSITY

Ladies and Gentlemen!

From May 15 till May 17, 2017, Saint Petersburg Mining University will hold the VIII International Research and Practice Conference “Innovations in Mining Enterprise Engineering: Geomechanical Tools in Planning, Design and Mining Operations”.

Conference history

More than 100 Russian and foreign specialists from leading design and scientific establishments, higher educational colleges and universities, and production companies take part in the annual International Research and Practice Conference “Innovations in Mining Enterprise Engineering”.

The key issues discussed include safety improvement and the development and application of innovative design technologies that provide effective methods for ore, rock and coal mining.

Aims of the conference

- to share experiences in developing and applying geomechanical tools in the process of mine designing and at different stages of mine development;
- to work out a set of measures aimed at reorganizing the Russian community of geomechanical engineers and organizing an ISRM conference in Saint Petersburg in 2018.

Key focus areas of the conference

- Physical and mechanical properties of fractured rocks. Studies of rock properties in laboratory and field conditions.
- Geomechanics and geodynamics of rock mass during the process of mining.
- Geomechanical problems connected with combining surface and underground methods of mining.

- The safeguarding of underground structures while burying radioactive and toxic industrial waste.
- Geomechanical process modeling.
- Analytical and numerical methods in geomechanics.
- The monitoring of geodynamic parameters of rock mass. Monitoring tools and software.
- The geomechanical modeling of deposits with the purpose of designing and tracking mining operations.
- Determining the cost-effectiveness of geodynamic and geomechanical solutions for mine design and planning.
